Software Entrepreneur Keith Sopher Joins Sabera

Towson, Maryland, July 21, 2008 – Sabera, a leading provider of Governance, Risk, and Compliance (GRC) solutions, today announced that experienced software entrepreneur, Keith Sopher, has joined the company as Chief Technology Officer. Keith will oversee development of the company's flagship software product, Compliance TotalView™, participate in each of Sabera's client projects during the implementation and deployment phases, and is responsible for the management of Sabera's technology infrastructure and operations.

"I am very excited about joining Sabera. It provides an opportunity to utilize my extensive experience within technology organizations in an entrepreneurial environment. It's both a role and a business model with which I'm very comfortable," shared Mr. Sopher. "It's an exciting time at Sabera and I look forward to contributing to the future success."

Tim Satterfield, CEO of Sabera, sees Sopher as an important addition to the Sabera team. "Keith designed and built a successful enterprise-level software application at the Arlington Group, and he has years of direct experience as an entrepreneur and software executive. He will be critical to our ongoing success with Compliance TotalView™."

Mr. Sopher has more than 18 years of executive and management experience within technology organizations. From 1996 to 2007, Keith was an owner and Chief Technology Officer of the Arlington Group, a multi-million dollar Virginia-based software product and services company specializing in helping organizations that are large-scale, high-visibility, or have complex processes, to implement the best process and technology solutions to meet their needs. Keith played a key role in the efforts that secured 25 top-tier clients including the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, the Howard Hughes Medical Institute, the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation, the YMCA of the USA, and other of the world's leading philanthropies. With Keith's contributions, the Arlington Group earned numerous software industry and civic business awards, and in 2001 was selected as one of Washingtonian Magazine's Best Places to Work.

Keith holds a M.S. in Biology from the University of Maryland Graduate School, a B.S. in Zoology from the George Washington University, and is both a Microsoft and VMWare Certified Professional.
